epionce

Natural rescue remedy for professional hands

Epionce has launched Lytic Lotion to combat the problem that many hairdressers experience due to the continual immersion of their hands in water, hair dyes and hair treatments. These chemicals and water can make hands dry, sore, sensitive and at risk of infection. This lotion is ideal for techs and hairdressers who spend all day working with chemicals. The company claims the lotion is clinically proven to work deep into the layers of the skin, penetrating into the follicles and working at the core of the skin's own protective and reparative systems. Epionce says the cream works through its unique sub-layer delivery system and botanical formulations. The key natural ingredients include willow bark extract, flax complex and rose hip oil. The product particularly helps reduce inflammation and common skin conditions such as eczema, psoriasis and scaling.
